NOTICE

WARNING CONCERNING COPYRIGHT RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

NOTE RE: SKIP LOGIC AND RECODES OF SKIP LOGIC QUESTIONS

Skip logic was triggered by answers to the following questions: Q1, Q23, Q31, Q35, Q38, Q47, and Q65. The online version of the survey was designed to automatically direct respondents to the next appropriate question based on their responses to these questions. It is clear from examination of the dataset that online skip logic did not trigger properly for all respondents when they responded to the questions listed above. In general, skip logic should have been triggered to advance the respondent to the next relevant question based on a response of “no,” “not applicable,” or a non-response. In some cases, respondents were erroneously advanced to the next chronological question when they should have been directed past it. Therefore, we created recodes of variables that included skip logic to remove those people that erroneously filled out questions that should have been skipped. In this process, it was assumed that respondents correctly filled out the initial question that triggered the skip logic. For instance, Question 66 was recoded to only include those respondents who selected “yes” in Question 65. This codebook describes the skip logic as it was intended to work for each skip logic question. It is indicated by an asterisk under each skip logic question where skip logic did not work as intended for all respondents. We encourage researchers to utilize the recodes that correct for this problem.
